

A WONDERFUL TRIP TO LAPLAND

Once upon a time in a town called Christmas, there was a girl named Ada who lived in a castle on the outskirts of the city. He was 5 years old and lived with his parents King Alfonso and Queen Maura. His older brother Aray, of 9 years old, was a rebellious and playful child and between the two of them they made mischief and had fun together inside the castle. Christmas would soon arrive and they wrote a letter to Santa Claus.

Ada and Aray did not believe in him because they had never seen him, they only knew that every Christmas, he left them gifts on their Christmas tree. One day they left the castle and walked for many hours through the forest. It was very cold and suddenly they came across a giant snowman. The children immediately turned to him and asked if he had seen Santa Claus, and he replied that he also believed that he did not really exist. They continued walking and, already very tired, they sat down leaning on a trunk and when they looked up, they saw that it was a huge Christmas tree full of lights. They immediately got up and asked him if he knew Santa Claus and he told them no, that on Christmas Day while he sleeps, he comes and leaves the gifts at their feet for the children.

Ada and Aray did not give up and continued walking through the forest, although they were already very afraid because it was getting dark.

Exhausted and with no hope of finding Santa Claus, suddenly two reindeer pushing a large sleigh approached them and asked: " what are you doing here little ones? Are you lost?"

The very sad children tell them no, that they have looked for Santa Claus for hours but in the end they have not found him. The two reindeer looked at each other and told them that today was their big lucky day. They got on their sleigh to live an incredible adventure. Ada says to the reindeer: "Where are we going?"

The reindeer answered: "Do you see the sky? Well, we are going to fly, we are going to Lapland."

The children got on the sleigh and embarked on a magical journey full of lights and singing Christmas carols. After flying for several hours they arrive in Lapland and in the distance they see a giant red and white house that has a sign on its door that says: "SANTA'S HOUSE."

The two brothers ran out of the sleigh and knocked on the door. Suddenly they heard a big HO/HO/HO! and a man dressed in red with a huge white beard came out, it was indeed Santa Claus.

The children looked at each other excitedly and shouted together: "SANTA CLAUS EXISTS, SANTA CLAUS EXISTS". And they saw how he had millions of gifts in his house to distribute to all the children on the big Christmas day. After some time together, Santa Claus told them that they had to return home with the reindeer in the sleigh.

Ada suddenly wakes up in her bed exhausted and discovers that everything has been a big dream but she jumps with happiness because she and her brother have met Santa Claus in his beautiful and huge house in Lapland and they know that he really exists and from now on everyone Christmas will be more magical than ever.
